Yahoo! Widgets [April-2022]

Yahoo! Widgets provide the native environment for Yahoo! small applications (widgets), so that you can run them on your computer with ease. This means that you do not need an Internet connection when you are doing your work: no access to the Internet required. Furthermore, widgets run independently on the operating system. Discontinued but still operational Although Yahoo! has shut down this project, the application is still functional and you can even run any widget you might find on the Internet as the Yahoo! Widget Gallery was closed on April 11th 2012. It can even be installed on Windows 10. The software application comes packed with a few integrated widgets, such as the Analog / Digital Clock, Battery, Day Planner, iTunes Remote, Picture Frame or Yahoo! Finance / Mail Checker / Weather. Other widgets that have become very popular over the years comprise a world time zone clock, various RSS feed readers, countdown timers or webcam viewers. Yahoo! Widgets features a dedicated HUD (heads-up display) to quickly showcase all the open widgets at once. This is available through a customizable hotkey or by clicking on the round-shaped icon at the bottom of the dock - the place where all your open widgets are shown in a smaller and lighter way. The dock also provides you with the possibility of choosing which widgets are shown on desktop or in the HUD mode only. Individual configuration settings for each widget Each and every widget fires up a new process when executed, just like Chromium-based Internet browsers do with their tabs. This makes it impossible for the whole engine to be affected by the malfunction of a single element. General widget options include Window Level selection (Normal or Keep on top / below other applications) and the Ignore Mouse, Prevent Dragging or Opacity options. Other customizable settings include Color selection for both edge and face. Grab more widgets from the web Since Yahoo! discontinued their support for the widget community, you can search the web and easily find the widget you are looking for. Softpedia features a whole category of them (entitled Windows Widgets) organized in several sub-categories consisting of Alarms & Clocks, Audio, Finances & Business, Games, Internet Radio, News, System Utilities, Video or Webcams. Yahoo! Widgets is not one but many things. It's responsible for many great widgets and the only way you are able to enjoy them b7e8df5c8
