(dnguard) and tried to use it but. I don't know what files to upload? ... I'd like to be able to subscribe/unsubscribe to a YouTube channel, and I'd like to get my YouTube channel back the way it was before I started. A: The behavior is specific to your Google account and not to all accounts. If you want to know the specific application that set this feature on, you need to check the logs of your Google account. The logs are stored in: /Applications/Google/Google Toolbar.app/support/Log/Debug.log but you need to make sure that the Google toolbar is not open. How do I find the Debug.log file? If you can open the Google toolbar, you can see the value of the key it is checking. But if you want to do it from the command line, you can use the Wireshark app. Wireshark is an app that is part of the default Mac OS install and can also be easily downloaded from this page of Apple's web site. If you do not have the Wireshark app, you can download it here. It is from the Apple's site, and will work on Mavericks (10.9) and later. Here is how to use the Wireshark app to view the data from Google Toolbar: Start the app. Open the HTTP tab. You will see a list of domains. You will want to filter all DNS Requests, and in the "Protocol" dropdown list, select DNS. A second window will open. If you scroll down the window, you will see the "Incoming DNS Requests". Scroll down to get to the bottom of the list. You will see the IP address of the Google Toolbar, and the date and time. This last line will probably be to the IP address you have reported, and not the IP address that you are trying to change. // //
